Columbus Attorney Files Damage Action Against Industry, Officials

COLUMBUS, March 14—(UP)—A taxpayer's suit to recover $6,000,000 from 24 road contractors, members of the Hot Mix Bituminous Industry of Ohio, and from highway department officials who granted state contracts to them was filed in Common Pleas court today.

The suit was filed on behalf of Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, a Columbus attorney, by her counsel, Benjamin Levinson. Miss Dickinson previously filed a taxpayer's suit seeking to vacate a liquor trucking contract granted to the Shaw Transport Co., of which John F. Nolan, Steubenville, Democratic leader, is a stockholder.

The new suit charged that the taxpayers have been "cheated and defrauded" out of more than $3,000,000 by the "hot mix" group, and alleged that the contractors' association violated the Valentine anti-trust act. The petition demanded double damages.

The Hot Mix Bituminous Industry of Ohio, Inc., its secretary, Clifford W. Simpson, State Highway Director John J. Jaster, Jr., and State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson were named defendants.

Based partially upon disclosures by the senate graft investigating committee, the petition listed the following accusations:

Mrs. Ned Clifton, 40, Thrown from Car, Found Lying Between Pennsylvania Tracks

Mrs. Marie Clifton, 40, of 225 E. Ohio street, narrowly escaped death Saturday night when she was run over by a Pennsylvania railroad engine at the Ohio street crossing. Mrs. Clifton suffered dislocation of both hips, cuts on the chin, forehead and right hand and severe bruises. Her condition was reported "fair" Monday.

She was riding in an auto with her husband, Ned, 50, and William Mounts, Logan street, going east on Ohio street to the Clifton home. Mr. Clifton said he did not see the switching engine. The engine was moving westward.

Police said the engine shoved the auto from the street to a point near the sidewalk on the south side of Ohio street. After the accident Mrs. Clifton could not be found, police said. When the locomotive was backed away from the auto Mrs. Clifton was found between the rails. Some of her hair had been cut off by the train wheels.

Mrs. Clifton was removed to the hospital in the Albaugh ambulance. She was treated by Dr. D. V. Courtwright. Mr. Clifton was treated by Dr. E. L. Montgomery for a broken nose, injured left shoulder cut on the left hand and minor cuts on the face. He was discharged after treatment. Mr. Mounts escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Mr. Clifton was unable to explain how his wife got out of the auto. He believes the impact of the train caused a door of the sedan to open, throwing her out. The Cliftons have six children. Police reported the time of the accident at 10:20 o'clock.

Mrs. Catherine Bryan, Portsmouth, forfeited a $15 bond in police court Monday for her appearance on a charge of operating an auto without a driver's license. Her arrest followed a traffic mishap Sunday afternoon at Court and Pinckney streets. Police said an auto driven by Mrs. Bryan collided with one driven by G. A. Snider, of Union City, Ind. Both cars were going north on Court street. Police said the Snider car stopped for the traffic light and the car driven by Mrs. Bryan struck the back end of the Snider car. No one was hurt.

Ernest R. "Rabbit" Dagon, 24, who has been employed as night man at E. E. Clifton's garage, S. Court street, was bound to the grand jury Monday by Mayor W. B. Cady under two $2,000 bonds on charges of auto theft and larceny. He was committed to the county jail after failure to provide bond.

Dagon is charged with the theft of the auto of Miss Helen Caldwell, 210 S. Court street, from the Clifton garage, and taking $47.55 from the garage cash register. Both charges were filed by Mr. Clifton.

The car and money are alleged to have been stolen early Sunday. Dagon is said to have driven to Ironton. Later he returned to Circleville. He was arrested Sunday night by police on York street. Mayor Cady said he pleaded guilty to both charges.

Vernon McGinnis, 37 W. Markers avenue, Columbus, paid $10 and costs to B. T. Hedges, justice of peace, Saturday, on a charge of reckless driving on Route 104. He was arrested by a state patrolman.

VINSON PLEADS FOR APPROVAL OF LARGE NAVY

Georgia Member Of House Declares Program As "Quarantine"

PRESIDENT QUOTED

Debate Opens On F. D.'s Fleet Addition

WASHINGTON, March 14—(UP)—Chairman Carl Vinson, D. Ga., of the naval affairs committee told the house today that the billion-dollar fleet President Roosevelt has requested as an addition to the present navy will be used to "quarantine the United States from the disease of war."

Opening house debate on the 20 percent expansion program, Vinson sought to refute charges that the President, in his Chicago "quarantine" speech, embarked on a new foreign policy calling for aggression.

Roosevelt Quoted

Vinson quoted the "quarantine" paragraph from Mr. Roosevelt's speech—subject of continued criticism during the month-long hearings on the expansion program—and added:

"Those who seek to distort this example forget the very next sentence. Let me quote it to you. 'It is my determination to pursue a policy of peace and to adopt every practicable measure to avoid involvement in war.'"

"We propose to quarantine ourselves from the grievous disease of war," Vinson explained, "and by that method we will not become involved in any alien quarrels, and in turn will preserve peace for this country."

"In other words, we apply the quarantine to ourselves. By a strong navy the health of the community will be protected from the disease of war."

Vinson's bill calls for 46 new fighting ships, 22 new auxiliaries, and nearly 1,000 additional airplanes. Because of the dispute over American foreign program, (Continued on Page Eight)

Clarence Darrow, Famed Criminal Lawyer, Dead At 81 of Heart Ailment

Chicagoan Victor In Many Prominent Trials During Long Career

CHICAGO, March 14—(UP)—

The body of Clarence Darrow lay in state today at a funeral parlor near the modest apartment home where he lived for 30 years during his rise to fame as one of the country's foremost criminal lawyers.

He died Sunday noon of heart disease complicated by old age. He would have been 81 in April. At his bedside were his wife, Ruby, his son, Paul, and his sister, Mrs. Jennie Darrow Moore. They said Darrow had been seriously ill since Thursday and early Saturday passed into a death coma.

In his long career, defender in a hundred or more murder trials, Darrow never lost a client to the gallows or electric chair. He spent much time fighting capital punishment and laws which he said were of benefit neither to the criminal nor society.

Became Materialist

He was almost as greatly noted for his agnosticism as for his talents in the courtroom. He believed thoroughly in freedom of education as well as speech and thought. Three years ago, shortly before his retirement, he proclaimed himself a materialist. "It has taken me 50 years," he said, "to learn that there is nothing after death."

Darrow had many wealthy clients but built a reputation as the friend of the downtrodden.

He was perhaps best known for his defense of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, "whim slayers" of Bobby Franks, Chicago boy. He took the case although the crime had aroused strong public opinion. (Continued on Page Eight)

CZECHS DECLARE THEIR NATION'S SAFETY ASSURED

PRAGUE, March 14—(UP)—Several German war planes, returning to Germany from Austria, flew over Czechoslovakian territory, it became known today.

The government announced in a communique that the German government had promised a "full and painstaking investigation."

Defense Minister Frantisek Machnik declared in a speech yesterday that Czechoslovakia was "in no way affected by the latest happenings."

"The contractual relations between Czechoslovakia and other powers and Czechoslovakia's own strength always have been the real guarantors of our security, and they continue to be that," Machnik said. "I can declare with sincere satisfaction that nobody even thinks of threatening our security."

Meanwhile, Konrad Henlein, head of the pro-Nazi Sudeten German party, told his rejoicing followers that "we know our fight will be successful."

UNCLE SAM TO ACT CAUTIOUSLY

Question Of Recognition For Nazis' Annexation Not Yet Raised

WASHINGTON, March 14—(UP)—State department officials indicated today that the United States would move slowly and cautiously before granting diplomatic recognition to Germany's annexation of Austria.

The question has not been raised officially—yet. Until formal notice of Austria's union with Germany has been received at the state department no reason exists for official consideration of the matter, it was said.

When such notice is received, it was indicated, all circumstances of the union of the two countries will be studied carefully. It was anticipated that by then the principal European governments, particularly Great Britain and France, will have decided on their course of action and, while it is not certain that this government's decision would be the same, it was believed that the British-French course would have an important bearing on this country's decision.

Officials here consider the German-Austrian events as particularly European.

PACIFIC FLEET PREPARED FOR SECRET DRILLS

SAN PEDRO, Calif., March 14—(UP)—Absolute secrecy was enforced today as the full United States fleet was mobilized for six weeks of war games in the Pacific—maneuvers extending from Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, to Hawaii and American Samoa.

For the first time in history, newspapermen were denied permission to attend the games. The order to sail was expected sometime after Monday midnight, but only Admiral Claude C. Bloch, the commanding officer, and other members of the high command knew the exact hour of departure.

More than 50,000 enlisted men and 3,600 officers will participate in the games, described as the most comprehensive in history.

VIENNA, March 14—(UP)—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, triumphant ruler from the North, rode through the streets of Vienna today in the crowning act of his consolidation of the German empire from the Baltic to the Italian border.

Through streets jammed with hundreds of thousands of cheering Austrians; through a city buried under the Nazi swastika and swarming with German regulars, Hitler was driven in jubilant procession to the center of the former capital of the Hapsburgs—now German.

The great ring boulevard circling the city and the streets leading into it were jammed almost beyond belief.

The university, situated in the ring, steadily poured forth storm troops in brand new black uniforms who had entered in civilian clothes a few hours before. The uniforms arrived by the truckload, apparently from Germany.

Storm Troops Busy

Behind the crowds, storm troopers and officials were busy.

Food and supplies were requisitioned for the needy and paid for in scrip. The stock exchange was closed indefinitely. The courts started passing sentences in "the name of the German nation" instead of the Austrian state.

Hundreds of Jews clustered outside the Polish consulate, hoping for passports which would enable them to flee the country.

Anti-Jewish measures multiplied and the city's 160,000 Jews were in a state of fear.

Semi-military organizations requisitioned food and shoes throughout the city, including supplies from Jewish stores.

There was little violence. The official radio announced that a Hitler youth, Edmund Walter, had been killed by a Communist and taken to the hospital.

When police of the Nazi elite guards raided municipal headquarters, a revolver was accidentally discharged. No one was hit but it caused the wildest rumors.

Police raided a bookstore in the Kaerntnerstrasse and confiscated a truckload of pornographic and anti-Nazi literature.

BRITAIN'S PRIME MINISTER FLAYS HITLER'S ACTION

LONDON, March 14—(UP)—The German annexation of Austria will be followed by intensification of British rearmament, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told a crowded House of Commons today in a vigorous statement on foreign affairs.

Chamberlain excoriated Germany, declaring: "The methods adopted throughout these events call for the severest condemnation and administered a profound shock to all who are interested in the preservation of European peace."

"What has happened," Chamberlain continued, "cannot fail to have prejudiced his majesty's government's hope of removing misunderstandings between nations and promoting international co-operation."

"The interest of his majesty's government in this question cannot on any tenable ground be denied. His majesty's government are and must always be interested in developments in central Europe, particularly events such as those which have just taken place."

Pickaway Farmers

Federal payments in Ohio under the national farm programs from May 12, 1933 to January 31, 1938, have totaled $35,235,116.13.

Prospects in early March indicate a plentiful supply of early vegetables, potatoes, and strawberries. Plantings of early cantaloupes are larger than usual and a record crop of early peas is expected.

People who are going to invest money in fruit trees, small fruits, or shrubs are advised by members of the department of horticulture at Ohio State University that the first cost is not the most important consideration in buying.

The National Bureau of Standards is hoping Congress will soon finish the job given it 150 years ago of defining one inch and one pound. It appears that the country has been muddling along with those measures of quantity without official legislative sanction.

Ohio farmers who are rearranging fields for strip cropping should remember that the proper width of the strips depends upon the degree of slope and the soil type. A width of 84 feet, commonly used in the Salt Creek area, is too wide for the most efficient control of soil erosion on some farms but is satisfactory on others.

Early pasture peps up livestock but it reduces the total amount of forage produced annually by a given acreage of pasture land, and agronomists at Ohio State University believe the 1938 cost of establishing seedlings should persuade farmers to handle their grass lands as advantageously as possible this year.

The following questions are those which have actually been asked Mr. Ries in the last week, either by mail, by telephone or personally at meetings. You too can have your questions answered by writing to this newspaper or direct to Mr. Ries Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me when to transplant such shrubs as weigela, spirea, forsythia and others?

ANSWER: Shrubs may be transplanted any time between now and when their leaves start growth. In digging established shrubs, it is well to get as much of the root system as possible and replant them immediately so that the roots will not dry out.

QUESTION: Will you please give me the dates of the big flower shows that are held around the country?

ANSWER: International Flower Show, New York City, March 14 to 19; Boston, March 17 to 23; Detroit, March 19 to 27; Philadelphia, March 21 to 26; National Flower Show, Toronto, March 24 to April 3; St. Louis, March 26 to April 3; Chicago, April 2 to 10.

QUESTION: I have to give a talk before my garden club on flower arrangement. I would like to know what book you would recommend that I consult to get this material.

ANSWER: One inexpensive little book, and at the same time satisfactory, is HOW TO ARRANGE FLOWERS by Dorothy Riddle, published by Doubleday Doran Company. A more complete book is FLOWER ARRANGEMENT by Rockwell and Grayson, published by the Macmillan Company, and THE PRINCIPLES OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT by E. A. White, published by DelaMare Company. I have a complete list of garden books that I will be glad to send upon request.

QUESTION: I have to give a talk before my garden club on lilies and would appreciate it if you would write up a 15 or 20 minute talk for me.

ANSWER: It is impossible for Ohio State University to write garden club talks for individuals. I am, however, sending you one or two of our bulletins which will give you information from which you can work up your own talk. May I suggest that you ask local county agricultural agent for a set of the garden bulletins of the Agricultural Extension Service, furnished free to residents of the state.

QUESTION: Several years ago I saw a very interesting annual flower and was told it was the spider flower, or Cleome. I have had seeds of this since but they have always developed into very insignificant, unsightly plants.

ANSWER: You must have gotten some seeds of our native spider flower, which are more or less worthless. If you will write to any of the larger seed companies for Cleome spinosa, you will find you can get it in both pink and white forms. It is one of our most satisfactory annual flowers, growing under adverse conditions as well as under good conditions. It will grow from three to five feet high with a profusion of flowers throughout the summer. Its one handicap is that it does not have a pleasant odor, so it should not be planted right under a dining room or bedroom window or along your porch.

QUESTION: I am interested in planting some garden roses this spring and would like to know where I can get some information on how to plant them, what varieties to select and how to care for them.

ANSWER: I am delighted to be

BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR HITS LIVESTOCK RAID

Among bills signed Saturday by Gov. Martin L. Davey was one increasing penalties for livestock rustling. The bill was aimed at gang raids in central Ohio counties in recent months.

Penalties provided in the bill are:

Fines of from $50 to $500 and imprisonment from one to three years for destroying fences with intent to steal or release livestock and fowls and $10 to $500 fine for any firm receiving livestock and fowls without keeping a record for a six months' period open for inspection of any peace officer.

Persons entering lands without permission of the owner with intent to steal anything of value would be subject to a fine of from $50 to $500 and imprisonment of from 30 days to six months and operators of a motor vehicle hauling farm products would be subjected to a fine of from $10 to $50 and imprisonment of 30 days to six months if they refused to give peace officers full information on the source of the cargo on demand.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

In today's mad race of modernity, the marital "triangle" has been pushed into limbo and in its place rises the matrimonial "rectangle" in the fast stepping comedy-drama, "Man-Proof," presented at the Cliftona Theatre.

With Myrna Loy, forming the quartet of principals, are Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon.

Miss Loy is a young artist disillusioned in love. Miss Russell is a wealthy socialite. Franchot Tone is a newspaper cartoonist and Walter Pidgeon is a social climber. Miss Loy loves Pidgeon, but he marries Miss Russell. Tone loves Miss Loy, but he keeps it to himself. Miss Loy is determined to separate the newlyweds and marry Pidgeon herself. While they are away on their honeymoon, she temporarily forgets Pidgeon and remains "wedded" only to her art.

AT THE GRAND

Now it may be told why Edmund Goulding started filming "That Certain Woman" — now showing at the Grand Theatre — on a graveyard set.

"I didn't want the somber thought of the graveyard scenes to be hovering ahead of us in our work," the director explained. "It was purely a psychological reason, but I believe it has much practical utility."

Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, Ian Hunter, Anita Louise and others in the cast voted their appreciation. None is superstitious, but there's something about a graveyard in prospect that isn't too exhilarating.

Sure, Britain will carry on. The more British cabinets change, the more they remain the same.

Ashville I. O. O. F. Lodge Trying to Enlarge Roster

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Instituted many years ago with a large and growing membership, the local I. O. O. F. lodge flourished and held numerous meetings that were more than a passing notice. The almost same condition applies to the K. of P. lodge, dwindling from an active membership of some 250 to less than the two figures last named. The first named lodge is now making an effort to re-establish itself, having held a recent meeting with eight present. Another session is scheduled for the near future and an earnest effort will be made to build up this once prosperous institution to something near its old self again.

Bowlers Busy

The high scoring bowlers for the week ending with Saturday night were for the ladies, Miss Dorothy Reid and for the men, Harley Musselman. The six teams are going strong with Scioto Dairies and Marcy competing to-night.

Squire John White and Froll Decker were down from Marcy territory Saturday and visited at headquarters to get the last word on how everything is stacking up, politics and all. The Squire says he is yet in the free marrying business, but trade is poor not yet having had a chance to tie that everlasting knot of his. But one of the court members, who to boost the squire's courage we think, told him his wife was rather poorly lately and in case he became a widower anyways soon, he would see that the squire had a job. Their old friend Bud Custer, who usually comes down with the boys, is in Columbus now and improved in health.

Word From Rockeys

A postcard mailed at Orlando, Florida, the 10th by Dr. and Mrs. Rockey was received by us Saturday. It said: "Very beautiful down here and plenty warm. Flowers everywhere. Having a most enjoyable trip." They said nothing about coming home, but suspect they'll be in by at least April 1.

Tag Sales Slow

Miss Marguerite Hoover, the deputy registrar of auto tag sales for Ashville and community up to Saturday night, had eight sales days, and in this time, has sold on an average of about a dozen a day. Having something near a thousand yet on hand to sell, it is more than an even bet that there will be a plenty doing about the sales shop next very soon. March 31 is the "dead line" for the old tags.

Youth Aids WBS

This morning WBS listeners noticed that the sound volume of the station was very much louder than usual. Our Bob Morrison who has a new job there, coming over from WCWL, we are guessing, is responsible for this big noise. At least we know that Bob is there to see that the "big noise" stays put and keeps going. Call it technician, if you like. Bob is there at work and likes it.

WILLIAMSPORT

Miss Margaret Dunlap entertained her contract bridge club with a dinner party at her home, Monday evening. Her guests were Mrs. Harold J. Bowers of Ashville, Mrs. Russell McDill of Frankfort, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Fred Tipton, Mrs. Lee Luelien, Mrs. S. B. Metzger, and Miss Laura McGhee.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wardell and family will move Monday to the home of Mr. Wardell's father, William J. Wardell on the Plummer road. The Wardells have rented their town residence to Superintendent and Mrs. Howard L. Sams.

Miss Laura McGhee was a member of the chorus which appeared in the annual recital of the Chillicothe Woman's Choral Club at Chillicothe, Wednesday evening, March 9. Mrs. Delores Maxwell is director of the organization. The program was presented at the Chillicothe High School auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Delos H. Marcy and daughter Miriam Sue of Circleville were Thursday evening guests of Mr. Marcy's mother, Mrs. Tammie Marcy. They also attended the covered dish supper at the Masonic Lodge rooms.

FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN
HAROLD K. CLAYPOOL

VISITORS—Visitors who called at my office during the last week included M. M. Berry, superintendent of public schools, Chillicothe; Lou M. Day, lawyer, Chillicothe; T. L. Hewetson, clerk of board of education, C. L. Berry, superintendent of Lancaster public schools, and Paul Wanger, principal of the Lancaster schools. These school officials were on their way to the Nation Superintendent's Convention at Atlantic City. C. E. Butler of Crooksville spent a few days in Washington visiting his son who is an employee of the Department of Commerce. My son and daughter-in-law spent the week with Mrs. Claypool and me.

TRADE UPTURN—Because there appears to be signs of an early and substantial pick up in industrial activity the Government's principal forecasters maintain their view that improvement both in industrial activity and trade is definitely due this Spring. More than $400,000,000 in soil conservation cash is starting to farmers. A total of about $700,000,000 relief expenditures will flow out during the next four months, and at the same time the Housing Act with liberal terms for prospective home builders, is beginning to show results.

CORN EXPORTS—During the current marketing season, export of corn has been the heaviest since 1928-29 with more than 17,000,000 bushels in four months. During a similar period, last year, when drought had laid waste the corn fields, imports were 24,000,000 bushels.

SPORTSMEN SPEND $11,000,000—Sportsmen in the U. S. and Alaska paid $10,466,237.37, for 6,658,158 hunting licenses in 1936. This is the latest year for which figures are available, nearly one million dollars more than the previous year. During 1936, they also spent $603,623 for Federal migratory-bird hunting stamps, bringing the total for both licenses and stamps to $11,069,860.37. The Federal stamps, at one dollar each are required of waterfowl hunters in addition to State licenses.

WORSE THAN WAR—Since its birth in 1776, our Nation has engaged in six major wars. These wars, in total, extended over a period of fifteen years and the number of American soldiers killed either in action or from wounds during this time, was 244,357. 41,912 traffic deaths occurred in fifteen years of peace. Our soldiers died for a purpose, but what purpose can be applied for the killing of these hundreds of thousands on our highway? Truly, our traffic slaughter is worse than war! Something must be done.

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE—Over 1,580,000 persons or 20% of the estimated population aged 65 and over, are receiving an average of $19.46 under the "old-age assistance" program. The percentage ranges from 7% aged in New Hampshire to 60% in Oklahoma. Lowest is Mississippi with $4.52, and the highest $39.61, in Colorado. In 1936 the amount paid out for assistance was $78,000,000 and rose last year to $181,000,000. Funds were supplemented by States to make a total of $383,000,000.

will meet at the home of Mrs. George Bochar and daughter, Miss Carolyn, next Wednesday, March 16, for a covered dish luncheon. The afternoon will be spent sewing. Each member is asked to bring some pieces of material for a comfort, either gingham or print material.

Total expense of the county engineer's office for the year ending Jan. 1 amounted to $95,761.04, almost $5,000 less than the cost during the previous year when expenses amounted to $100,682.05. New equipment purchased during 1937 cost the county $10,792.04.

The 1936 report of the engineer's office reveals the following expenditures: compensation and damages, $2,253.50; labor and materials on contract work, $41,102.42; labor employed direct, $39,260; materials, $10,421.27, and other expenses, $7,644.86.

During the last year the county spent $18,138.64 for easements on four roads taken over by the state highway department in 1936. The above information is contained in the annual report of H. G. Griner, county engineer.

Amounts spent on easements included Five Points-South Bloomfield road, $11,455.65; Bazole Mill-Clarksburg road, $2,124.02; Logan Elm-Kingston road, $2,219.22, and Judas road, $2,339.75.

Under maintenance of county roads for 1937 the following expenses were listed: motor graders, $1,925.51; horse-drawn graders, $4,404.26; labor, $22,407.06; hired trucks, $4,190.96; gravel, sand and crushed stone, $3,545.17; calcium chloride, $1,480.05; surface treatment materials, $6,071.72; drainage, $6,988.28 and charges for testing materials, $22.75.

The 1937 report shows $9,949.70 was spent for repaving, regrading, widening, and painting bridges and culverts and repairing and erecting guardrails. Miscellaneous materials for bridges and roads including wire, nails, paint, shovels, guardrail posts, lumber, reinforcing steel, cement, etc., totaled $11,664.80. Other items of expense were rental of equipment $411.25; gasoline, oil, grease, anti-freeze for cars, trucks, graders, motor crusher, etc., $2,652.23; coal $17.45; garage rent for grader $22.50; miscellaneous easements on county roads $959.82; grant to township for road fund $200; road signs $160.23; operation of the gravel crusher $1,224.30; Salt creek bridge under W. This morning WBNS listeners noticed that the sound volume of the station was very much louder than usual. Our Bob Morrison who has a new job there, coming over from WCOT, we are guessing, is responsible for this big noise. At least we know that Bob is there to see that the "big noise" stays put and keeps going. Call it technician, if you like. Bob is there at work and likes it.

FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN
HAROLD K. CLAYPOOL

VISITORS—Visitors who called at my office during the last week included M. M. Berry, superintendent of public schools, Chillicothe; Lou M. Day, lawyer, Chillicothe; T. L. Hewitson, clerk of board of education, C. L. Berry, superintendent of Lancaster public schools, and Paul Wanger, principal of the Lancaster schools. These school officials were on their way to the Nation Superintendent's Convention at Atlantic City. C. E. Butler of Crooksville spent a few days in Washington visiting his son who is an employee of the Department of Commerce. My son and daughter-in-law spent the week with Mrs. Claypool and me.

TRADE UPTURN—Because there appears to be signs of an early and substantial pick up in industrial activity the Government's principal forecasters maintain their view that improvement both in industrial activity and trade is definitely due this Spring. More than $400,000,000 in soil conservation cash is starting to farmers. A total of about $700,000,000 relief expenditures will flow out during the next four months, and at the same time the Housing Act with liberal terms for prospective home builders, is beginning to show results.

CORN EXPORTS—During the current marketing season, export of corn has been the heaviest since 1928-29 with more than 17,000,000 bushels in four months. During a similar period, last year, when drought had laid waste the corn fields, imports were 24,000,000 bushels.

SPORTSMEN SPEND $11,000,000—Sportsmen in the U. S. and Alaska paid $10,466,237.37, for 6,658,158 hunting licenses in 1936. This is the latest year for which figures are available, nearly one million dollars more than the previous year. During 1936, they also spent $603,623 for Federal migratory-bird hunting stamps, bringing the total for both licenses and stamps to $11,069,860.37. The Federal stamps, at one dollar each are required of waterfowl hunters in addition to State licenses.

WORSE THAN WAR—Since its birth in 1776, our Nation has engaged in six major wars. These wars, in total, extended over a period of fifteen years and the number of American soldiers killed either in action or from wounds during this time, was 244,357. 441,912 traffic deaths occurred in fifteen years of peace. Our soldiers died for a purpose, but what purpose can be applied for the killing of these hundreds of thousands on our highway? Truly, our traffic slaughter is worse than war! Something must be done.

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE—Over 1,580,000 persons or 20% of the estimated population aged 65 and over, are receiving an average of $19.46 under the "old-age assistance" program. The percentage ranges from 7% aged in New Hampshire to 60% in Oklahoma. Lowest is Mississippi with $4.52, and the highest $39.61, in Colorado. In 1936 the amount paid out for assistance was $78,000,000 and rose last year to $181,000,000. Funds were supplemented by States to make a total of $383,000,000.

will meet at the home of Mrs. George Bochar and daughter, Miss Carolyn, next Wednesday, March 16, for a covered dish luncheon. The afternoon will be spent sewing. Each member is asked to bring some pieces of material for a comfort, either gingham or print material.

"Why, if I lived as a girl I wouldn't have been able to work and help the family."

BRICKER PUTS NAME IN RACE FOR DAVEY JOB

Former Attorney General
To Demand Changes In Departments, He Says

PLATFORM DISCUSSED

Names Of Tom Jenkins,
Louis Taber Heard

COLUMBUS, March 14—(UP)—With the keynote demand for "common decency" in state government, John W. Bricker, the Ohio Republican standard bearer in 1936, formally announced today his candidacy for another party nomination for governor in the August primaries.

Bricker, at 44 a successful lawyer in the state capital and a former Ohio attorney general, entered his name again in the gubernatorial lists after receiving "endorsements" from Republican organizations in 44 of the 88 counties of the state.

In his statement of candidacy he left no doubt that he will direct much of his campaign attack against the policies of the Democratic administration of Gov. Martin L. Davey who defeated him in 1936.

Reforms Demanded

He indicated that plentiful use would be made of disclosures by the senate graft investigating committee, for although he did not refer directly to the inquiry he demanded reforms of the highway, liquor and purchasing departments which were most severely criticized by the committee.

"The opportunity for public service in public office, especially in Ohio in the office of governor, is unlimited," he said. "Personally, I consider the paramount issue in the coming campaign to be honesty, efficiency, and common decency in the conduct of the state's business. I shall conduct a militant and relentless campaign to carry this issue to the people, to the end that good government may be restored in this state."

Bricker was unopposed for the Republican nomination for governor two years ago while still serving his second term as attorney general which expired in 1937. In the 1936 general election he lost to Governor Davey by 126,000 votes in the Democratic landslide which netted President Roosevelt a 625,000 majority in Ohio.

The Republican state organization has moved to secure him a second nomination without opposition, the practice of securing county endorsements having been followed with that end in view.

While many politicians feel that this objective may again be attained, there is admittedly still some doubt of it. Earlier the names of Congressman Tom Jenkins, Iron-ton, and Louis J. Taber, Columbus, master of the national grange, were mentioned as possibilities. This talk has been less frequently met with recently, and "regular" leaders are hopeful, it is known, that Jenkins will again run for Congress and that Taber will enter for state treasurer.

LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION BUSINESS OVER JANUARY

Business of the Pickaway Livestock association, during February amounted to $102,573.66, directors were informed at their monthly meeting Saturday night.

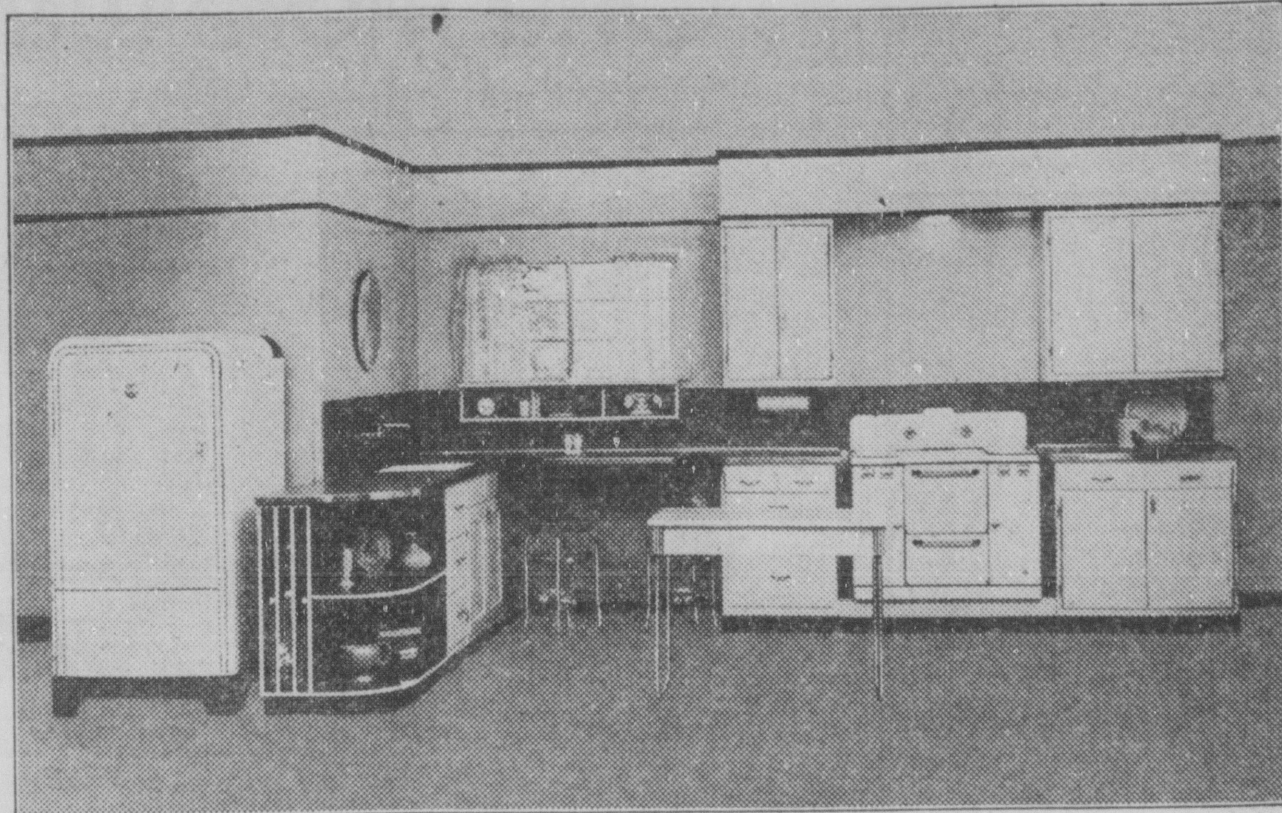

The volume was practically the same as February, 1937, but it was a large increase over January of this year when sales amounted to $68,790.16.

During February 3,856 heads of livestock were run through the yards. Receipts included, 2,520 hogs, 814 cattle, 200 calves and 322 sheep.

Deer Is Trapped 28 Times

Beautiful Kitchen Supplies Setting for Food Institute

ABOVE is pictured the model all-gas kitchen which will supply the attractive setting for all the programs of the 1938 Herald-Gasco Food Institute opening Wednesday afternoon at 2:00. The kitchen as shown above is completely assembled as it will appear on the Memorial Hall stage Wednesday. However, it is constructed in many units so that it may be taken down and transported from place to place.

More than a hundred different units comprising the kitchen arrived in Circleville Monday where they will be set up under the supervision of Ronald Lowe, institute manager.

The 1938 Food Institute is being presented cooperatively by the Circleville Herald, The Ohio Fuel Gas Company and prominent merchants of Circleville. Programs are planned for each afternoon at 2:00 on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Parents Asked to Take Part in Cub Program

Early indications point to an enthusiastic response from Circleville boys and parents to the announcement that an opportunity would be provided for local boys 9, 10 and 11 years old to participate in Cubbing, the younger boy program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Boy Scouts assisted in the delivery last week of over 40 invitations to parents to attend a meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Methodist church to receive information and have questions answered concerning Cubbing. The meeting is open to the public, however, and anyone interested who did not receive an invitation will be welcome. Children will not be admitted unless accompanied by an adult.

Scout officials, who will be in charge of the meeting, urge that every father and mother of a prospective Cub attend the meeting, since the program must have their cooperation to be successful. Unique in its organization, Cubbing aids parents in forming wholesome neighborhood "gangs", gives boys things to do at home with mother and dad, challenges them in a continuously progressing series of physical and moral achievements.

There are now over 80,000 Cubs in the United States, although this is the first time an attempt has been made locally to establish a Cub Pack.

Today's Recipes

SCALLOPINE OF LAMB WITH RICE—Two and one-half pounds shoulder of lamb, seasoned flour, two medium onions or one clove garlic, minced, six tablespoons fat or oil, three-fourths cup fresh or drained canned mushrooms, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one teaspoon granulated sugar, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one and one-fourth cups hot water, one and one-fourth cups strained canned tomatoes, rice. Cut the lamb into pieces as for stew. Roll lightly in flour seasoned with salt and pepper in the proportions of one-half cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and then saute with the minced onion in a skillet in the hot oil, until golden brown on all sides. Turn into a casserole, add the mushrooms, salt, sugar, pepper, hot water, and strained tomatoes. Canned tomato juice may be used instead of the strained tomatoes. Cover and cook in a moderate oven of 350 F. until the meat is tender—about one and one-half hours. Serve with boiled rice.

QUICK CARROT PICKLES—One-third cup sugar, one and one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons celery seed, three teaspoons white mustard seed, one and one-fourth cups mild vinegar, one quart carrot straws. Heat first five ingredients to boiling point. Add carrots, cut into straws

Softened Just Right
"Sometimes a frozen dessert is too solid. It will soften evenly and be just right to serve if placed on a lower refrigerator shelf for a short time, rather than outside the refrigerator, where the edges usually get too soft while the middle portion remains too solid." —Bertha Strauch, Los Angeles, Cal.

FACTS AND FANCIES
Cream Cheese and Brazil Nut Salad
Three-fourths cup cream cheese, two tablespoons chopped olives, three-fourths cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup crushed Brazil nuts, lettuce or other salad green, French dressing, guava jelly. Mix lettuce with French dressing in a salad bowl and then arrange cheese balls alternately with cubes of guava or apple jelly on top of dressed salad. This is a pretty luncheon salad.

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Friends:
Commemorating the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the Circleville Benevolent Association a special effort to raise needed funds seems fitting at this time. The object and aim of this organization has ever been to relieve temporary suffering of the needy and seek to remedy the conditions tending to poverty.

In spite of the fact that there has been for several years past a great deal of public relief, there is still work for the Benevolent Association in providing for the needs of families that are not eligible for federal or county relief, such as those on W.P.A. or in some private industry where wages may be sufficient for rent and food but in large families not enough to provide sufficient clothing or milk for the babies.

Our special work for the last two years has been to furnish milk to T.B. cases, undernourished children, and others in time of sickness or temporary need, also some food and fuel.

Christmas Baskets are a specialty every year. We have provided used clothing and shoes, bedding and other household articles that have added to the comfort and well being of 182 families during the past year. Other help was needed that we could not supply on account of limited funds and supplies.

Special effort was made in late Summer and Fall to have clients provide for their Winter needs by canning fruit and vegetables. The results were quite satisfactory.

The friendly service of the Social Worker in carrying a bit of sunshine and cheer to the discouraged and distressed families is not the least of our efforts toward helpfulness.

We are depending upon your interest and membership in the C. Benev. Association as well as a generous contribution toward its support.

Very sincerely,
The Circleville Benevolent Association

SEADLUND GOES ON TRIAL FOR ROSS KIDNAPING

CHICAGO, March 14 — (UP)—John Henry Seadlund faced trial today by a federal jury which will determine his penalty—death or a prison term—for the kidnaping of Charles S. Ross, 72, retired greeting card manufacturer.

Seadlund, who told his attorneys he wanted to be tried quickly even if he is sentenced to die, already had plead guilty. New federal legislation requires that jury must fix the penalty in capital crimes. Attorneys Floyd E. Thompson and Frederic Burnham, Jr., planned to challenge the procedure. They said they would object to impaneling of the jury on the ground that under the Lindbergh kidnaping law there is no authority for such a body when the defendant has plead guilty and that the court should fix the punishment. They intend, they said, to carry the fight to the supreme court if Seadlund is sentenced to die.

U. S. District Attorney Michael L. Igoe said he would demand the death penalty.

Ninety-three witnesses, 64 of them G-men who helped trail Seadlund for nearly three months after he and James Atwood Gray, young Kentuckian, abducted Ross, were subpoenaed for the trial. They also included Ross' widow, Mae, George J. Kukovac, motorcycle messenger who delivered the ransom to Seadlund and Edmund S. Cumming, Jr., Ross' attorney, who arranged payment of the money. Seadlund confessed to G-men that he killed Ross and Gray in a snow-covered dugout near Spooner, Wis., two days after he collected $50,000 ransom from Mrs. Ross. He faced trial, however, only on the kidnaping charge.

Business of the Pickaway Livestock association, during February amounted to $102,573.66, directors were informed at their monthly meeting Saturday night.

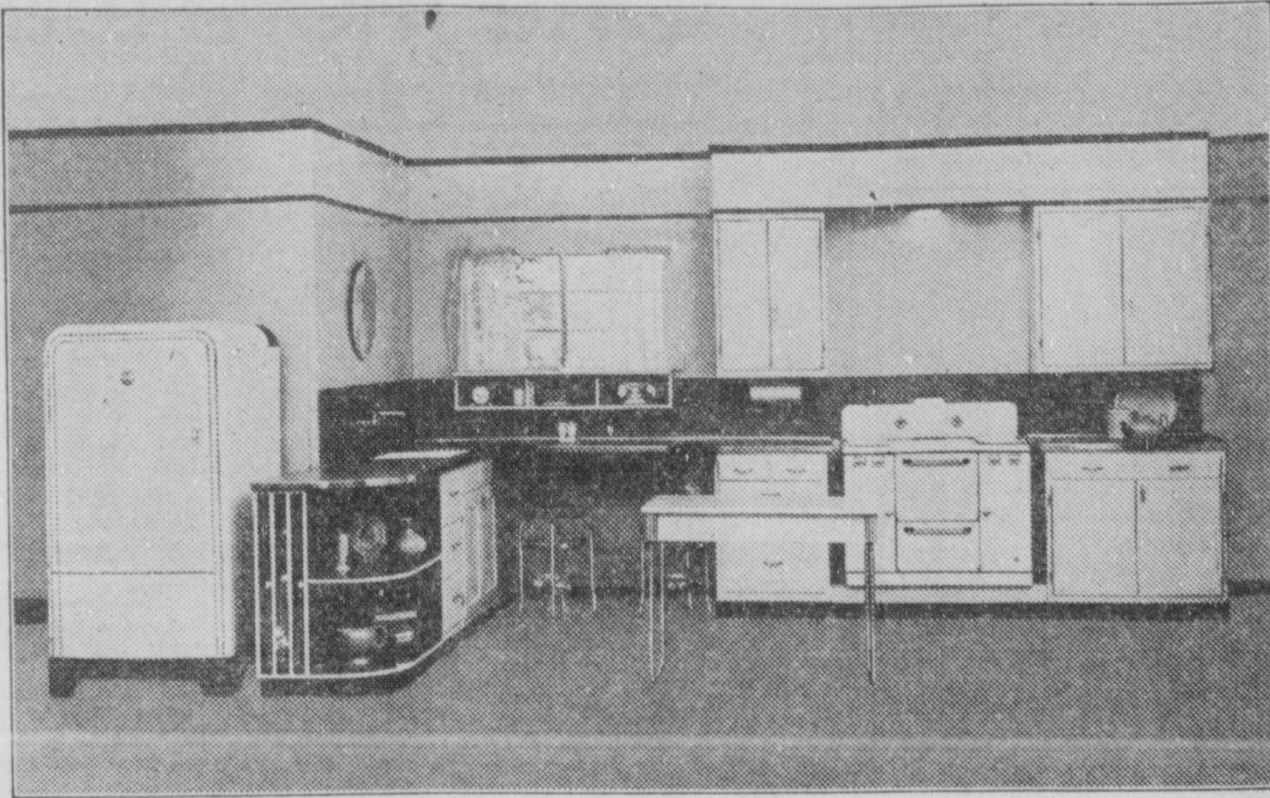

The volume was practically the same as February, 1937, but it was a large increase over January of this year when sales amounted to $68,790.16.

Beautiful Kitchen Supplies Setting for Food Institute

ABOVE is pictured the model all-gas kitchen which will supply the attractive setting for all the programs of the 1938 Herald-Gasco Food Institute opening Wednesday afternoon at 2:00. The kitchen as shown above is completely assembled as it will appear on the Memorial Hall stage Wednesday. However, it is constructed in many units so that it may be taken down and transported from place to place.

More than a hundred different units comprising the kitchen arrived in Circleville Monday where they will be set up under the supervision of Ronald Lowe, institute manager.

The 1938 Food Institute is being presented cooperatively by the Circleville Herald, The Ohio Fuel Gas Company and prominent merchants of Circleville. Programs are planned for each afternoon at 2:00 on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Parents Asked to Take Part in Cub Program

Early indications point to an enthusiastic response from Circleville boys and parents to the announcement that an opportunity would be provided for local boys 9, 10 and 11 years old to participate in Cubbing, the younger boy program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Boy Scouts assisted in the delivery last week of over 40 invitations to parents to attend a meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the Methodist church to receive information and have questions answered concerning Cubbing. The meeting is open to the public, however, and anyone interested who did not receive an invitation will be welcome. Children will not be admitted unless accompanied by an adult.

Scout officials, who will be in charge of the meeting, urge that every father and mother of a prospective Cub attend the meeting, since the program must have their cooperation to be successful. Unique in its organization, Cubbing aids parents in forming wholesome neighborhood "gangs," gives boys things to do at home with mother and dad, challenges them in a continuously progressing series of physical and moral achievements.

There are now over 80,000 Cubs in the United States, although this is the first time an attempt has been made locally to establish a Cub Pack.

Today's Recipes

SCALLOPINE OF LAMB WITH RICE—Two and one-half pounds shoulder of lamb, seasoned flour, two medium onions or one clove garlic, minced, six tablespoons fat or oil, three-fourths cup fresh or drained canned mushrooms, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one teaspoon granulated sugar, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one and one-fourth cups hot water, one and one-fourths cups strained canned tomatoes, rice. Cut the lamb into pieces as for stew. Roll lightly in flour seasoned with salt and pepper in the proportions of one-half cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and then saute with the minced onion in a skillet in the hot oil, until golden brown on all sides. Turn into a casserole, add the mushrooms, salt, sugar, pepper, hot water, and strained tomatoes. Canned tomato juice may be used instead of the strained tomatoes. Cover and cook in a moderate oven of 350 F. until the meat is tender—about one and one-half hours. Serve with boiled rice.

QUICK CARROT PICKLES—One-third cup sugar, one and one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons celery seed, three teaspoons white mustard seed, one and one-fourth cups mild vinegar, one quart carrot straws. Heat first five ingredients to boiling point. Add carrots, cut into straws.

SOFTEN JUST RIGHT—"Sometimes a frozen dessert is too solid. It will soften evenly and be just right to serve if placed on a lower refrigerator shelf for a short time, rather than outside the refrigerator, where the edges usually get too soft while the middle portion remains too solid." —Bertha Strauch, Los Angeles, Cal.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Cream Cheese and Brazil Nut Salad—Three-fourths cup cream cheese, two tablespoons chopped olives, three-fourths cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup crushed Brazil nuts, lettuce or other salad green, French dressing, guava jelly. Mix cream cheese with chopped celery and olives and form into small balls. Roll each ball in crushed Brazil or other nuts. Mix lettuce with French dressing in a salad bowl and then arrange cheese balls alternately with cubes of guava or apple jelly on top of dressed salad. This is a pretty luncheon salad.

SEADLUND GOES ON TRIAL FOR ROSS KIDNAPING

CHICAGO, March 14 — (UP)—John Henry Seadlund faced trial today by a federal jury which will determine his penalty—death or a prison term—for the kidnaping of Charles S. Ross, 72, retired greeting card manufacturer.

Seadlund, who told his attorneys he wanted to be tried quickly even if he is sentenced to die, already had plead guilty. New federal legislation requires that jury must fix the penalty in capital crimes.

Attorneys Floyd E. Thompson and Frederic Burnham, Jr., planned to challenge the procedure. They said they would object to impaneling of the jury on the ground that under the Lindbergh kidnaping law there is no authority for such a body when the defendant has plead guilty and that the court should fix the punishment. They intend, they said, to carry the fight to the supreme court if Seadlund is sentenced to die.

U. S. District Attorney Michael L. Igoo said he would demand the death penalty.

Ninety-three witnesses, 64 of them G-men who helped trail Seadlund for nearly three months after he and James Atwood Gray, young Kentuckian, abducted Ross, were subpoenaed for the trial. They also included Ross' widow, Mae, George J. Kukovac, motorcycle messenger who delivered the ransom to Seadlund and Edmund S. Cumming, Jr., Ross' attorney, who arranged payment of the money. Seadlund confessed to G-men that he killed Ross and Gray in a snow-covered dugout near Spooner, Wis., two days after he collected $50,000 ransom from Mrs. Ross. He faced trial, however, only on the kidnaping charge.

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Friends:
Commemorating the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the Circleville Benevolent Association a special effort to raise needed funds seems fitting at this time. The object and aim of this organization has ever been to relieve temporary suffering of the needy and seek to remedy the conditions tending to poverty.

In spite of the fact that there has been for several years past a great deal of public relief, there is still work for the Benevolent Association in providing for the needs of families that are not eligible for federal or county relief, such as those on W.P.A. or in some private industry where wages may be sufficient for rent and food but in large families not enough to provide sufficient clothing or milk for the babies.

Our special work for the last two years has been to furnish milk to T.B. cases, undernourished children, and others in time of sickness or temporary need, also no food and fuel.

Christmas Baskets are a specialty every year. We have provided used clothing and shoes, bedding and other household articles that have added to the comfort and well being of 182 families during the past year. Other help was needed that we could not supply on account of limited funds and supplies.

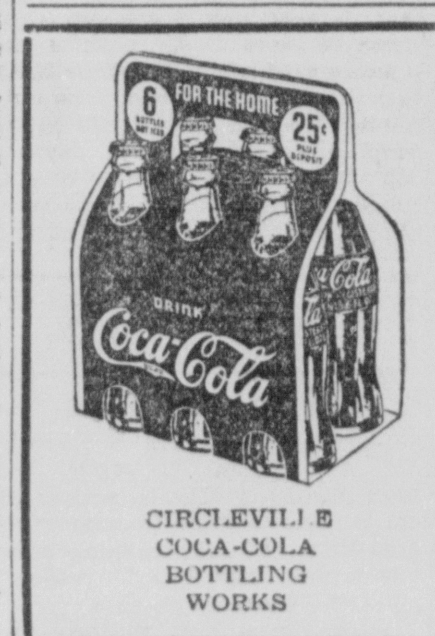

Special effort was made in late Summer and Fall to have clients provide for their Winter needs by canning fruit and vegetables. The results were quite satisfactory.

The friendly service of the Social Worker in carrying a bit of sunshine and cheer to the discouraged and distressed families is not the least of our efforts toward helpfulness.

We are depending upon your interest and membership in the C. Benev. Association as well as a generous contribution toward its support.

Very sincerely,
The Circleville Benevolent Association

ISLANDS

ISLANDS are looking up these days. Nations take more and more interest in them, no matter how distant or isolated, as aviation spreads and they need landing and roosting places for their flyers.

Uncle Sam, long careless of such matters because we had more real estate at home than we could use, is waking up now and scanning the map for unused bits of land in the Pacific that have harbors where planes or ships may find shelter. Particularly in Polynesia, the region of "many islands" in the southwestern Pacific, near Australia and New Zealand.

To many islands there, unoccupied or held by doubtful claimants, the United States may have a lawful claim by virtue of prior discovery in the old whaling days. It would be foolish to go around claiming everything in sight; but a chain of such islands, to serve as landing and fueling stations and refuges against storms, and perhaps also supply posts for naval vessels, would be very useful hereafter. They are needed especially to serve the new commercial air routes.

It is probably unnecessary to get into any squabble with any other nation about them. In case of any honest dispute with other claimants, especially the British countries, it should be possible to handle the matter on a friendly and businesslike basis, buying what we need if our title isn't clear.

PRIZE-WINNING BOOKS

THE American Booksellers Association has announced its 1937 prizes. The winners are A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel", Eve Curie's "Madame Curie", Carl Crow's "400 Million Customers", and Lawrence Watkins "On Borrowed Time". Mr. Crow's book was rated "most original" and Mr. Watkins' "most deserving book which failed to receive adequate recognition."

The booksellers' awards differ from others because they are frankly based on personal preferences. In announcing the awards, it was carefully explained that "the booksellers merely vote for their favorite books. Twenty years from now we can decide which are the masterpieces. This year we can only decide which books we enjoyed reading the most."

Twenty years from now it may be interesting to compare the Booksellers' choices with the Pulitzer prize winners for this or any other year. Which group will last in popular and critical favor? Or will

ABOUT CALIFORNIA AND ICKES

WASHINGTON — Californians in the Capital are beginning to hear a lot about Charles Dunwoody, the California Chamber of Commerce lobbyist who has stirred up the campaign against the proposed Department of Conservation and has set Secretaries Ickes and Wallace at each other's throats.

The other day a delegation from Los Angeles went to see Secretary of the Interior Ickes to get a third transmission line built from Boulder Dam to Los Angeles, in order to supply more power to the city. In the delegation were Northcutt Ely, attorney for the Los Angeles water district, with Clyde Errett and Francis Lindley of Los Angeles.

They explained what they wanted to Ickes, who has charge of Boulder Dam power, and after listening carefully, he replied:

"Gentlemen, I would suggest that you take this up with California Chamber of Commerce. It maintains a very active lobby in Washington, headed by one Charles Dunwoody who, I understand claims that he can get anything he wants in Washington.

"There are a lot of other States asking for more Boulder Dam power, so if I were you I would see the boys who are supposed to be getting things done here."

Worried by Dunwoody's activities, Phil Swing, ex-Congressman from San Diego and a father of Boulder Dam, went to see Dunwoody, told him he was jeopardizing the position of a State which had more questions before the Interior Department than before any other agency in Washington.

SELLING "THE RIVER"

There is an interesting anti-monopoly story behind the deal made with Paramount Pictures for distribution of "The River".

This picture, noble successor to "The Plow that Broke the Plains", is being distributed all over the country through regular commercial channels, just like a Hollywood product.

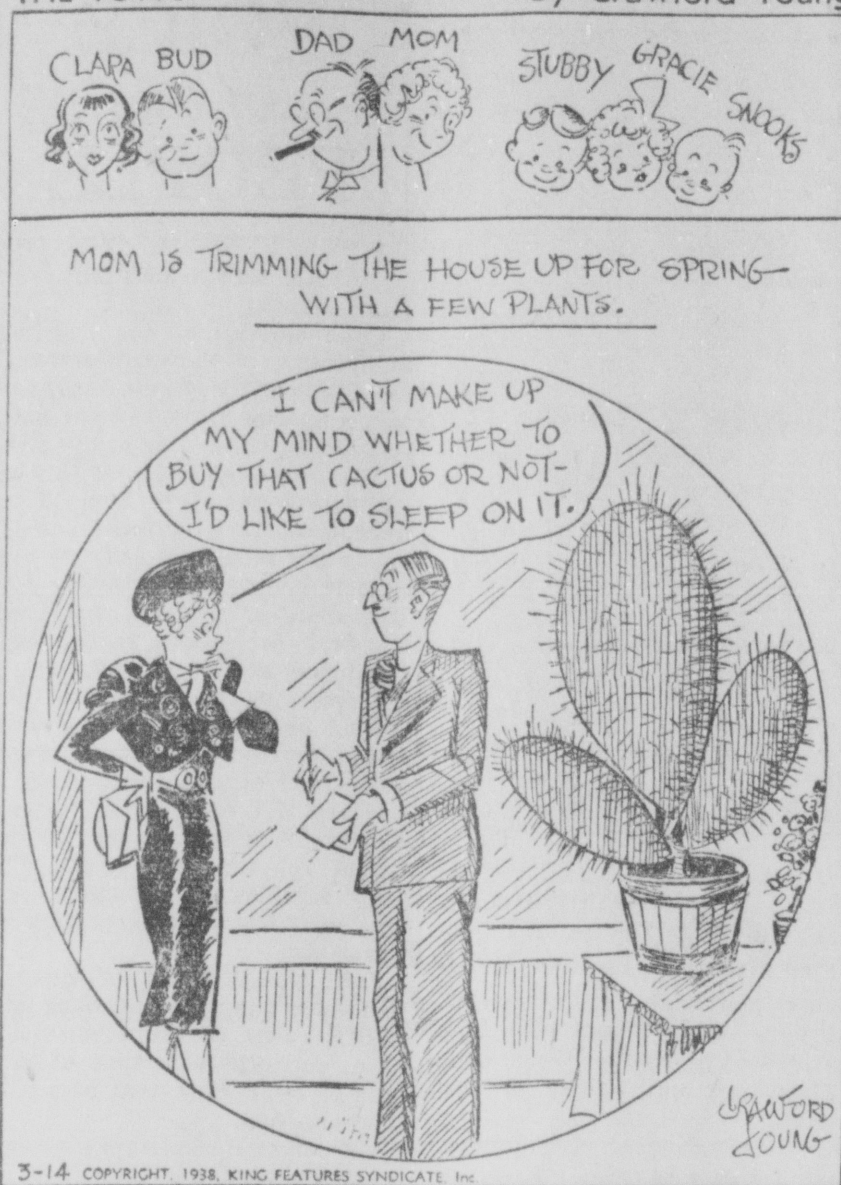

"The Plow" was handled more modestly. Tugwell was proud of the picture, for it put across his Resettlement propaganda better than a ream of speeches. But he found Hollywood cool. The big cinema boys resented government competition.

When "The River" was filmed, with even greater success, Tugwell's successors in the Farm Security Administration wanted to make sure it would go places. They arranged a meeting with officials of Paramount to discuss distribution. From Washington there came not only representatives of Farm Security, but one more gentleman, whose presence meant pressure.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Caused Sickness from Eating of Mussels

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE DAY IN July, 1927, a man of 35 years of age went into a restaurant in San Francisco and ate a dozen and a half mussels for supper.

Dr. Clendening

About a half hour later he began to feel aching and tired all over; then he was sick at his stomach and began to have trouble with his breathing. He became unconscious. His breathing gradually became shallower and slower, until all the muscles which move respiration were paralyzed, and he died five hours after the supper of mussels.

The experience was repeated on a 12-year-old boy, who ate raw mussels and died three and a half hours later. A boy of two years drank a small glass of broth with three mussels and died in five and a half hours.

Every year since then there have been deaths and severe sickness following eating of raw mussels along the Pacific coast. Three cases and two deaths were reported in 1936. Laboratory experiments have been made which make it plain that the poison comes to the mussel contained in the ocean water. It is probably the food of the shellfish.

What Mussels Feed On
Mussels feed on plankton. The outbreaks of mussel poisoning occur only in the summer months between May and October. At this time there is an increase of a certain genus of plankton, and brilliant displays of phosphorescence have occurred in the water before the occurrence of mussel poisoning.

It is not possible to tell a poisoned mussel from a healthy one on inspection or from smell. Conducive to a large epidemic is a spell of fair weather and favorable low tides over the week-ends, when most of the mussels are collected and consumed. Until the investigations have proceeded to the place where we know exactly the cause of the poisoning and how to prevent it, my advice would be not to eat any mussels on the Pacific coast between the months of May and October. This may be a little tough on the mussel-fishing industry, but at least it will save your life.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. F. T.: "I have been troubled for more than a year with a dryness in my mouth at night. I am often awakened from sleep at night and have unpleasant dreams due to this aridity. Can I do anything for this condition?"
Answer: Most people after the age of 30 sleep with their mouths open because their jaws relax, and the dryness is due to the air moving in and out. It is a practically universal condition after that period of life. The only thing that I know of to do for it is to have a glass of water at the side of your bed and when you wake up take a drink and get your mouth re-moistened. It is not significant of any disease.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene", and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

One More Wedding

"You're doing all right, Babbs."

CHAPTER 1
THE MUSICIANS had gathered early to rehearse for the Rinehart-Jameson nuptials which were scheduled for four o'clock, according to the engraved invitations that the postman had delivered to 200 local doors. Now the cello and violin, sweet and tremulous, followed the well-worn path to happiness as Barbara Kingsley walked down Center street.

But Barbara, instead of throwing her bright head higher to hold the rhythm, suddenly put her tanned hands over ears and ducked into the back entrance of the Martinsville Post. She was weary of weddings. If it hadn't been for her job as society editor, she murmured to herself as she climbed the stairs to the editorial room, nothing could have coaxed her to Marie Rinehart's wedding.

"Not 100 invitations all embossed in gold braid on white satin," she magnified the bride's social gesture as she tossed her large leghorn hat on the exchange table where it would be in every one's way, ran slim, restless fingers through her unruly chestnut curls, and slid a sheet of yellow copy paper under the rubber roll of her typewriter. "Weddings should take place at a city hall at noon, and there should be no flowers!"

"Why?"
She didn't know that she had spoken out loud until Peter Baxter, the managing editor, interrupted her reverie. He stroled over to her desk and leaned against it. He was tall, gangling and kindly. One lock of hair persisted in falling over one eye, and his face was homely but rugged and distinguished, though no one ever could decide where the distinction lay.

"How can a bride know if she loves the man when the whole frameup is influencing her that way?" Barbara asked candidly.
"Her mind should be made up earlier, my dear young lady! What is eating you? The church does make swell society copy, don't they?"

Barbara nodded slowly, studying Peter under the thick, dark lashes that screened her gray-green eyes. "Excellent, Peter! Grist for the mill—except I'm running out of adjectives to describe the bride's dresses. Peter, they all follow the same pattern but they all want to look different."

Peter laughed, and the smile made his face very young.
"You're doing all right, Babbs." He surveyed the green lace frock that his society editor was wearing. "Good looking dress."

"It was cream-colored last year. I dyed it. But it will make the grade, don't you think? Especially at weddings. Nobody sees anyone but the bride and her bridesmaids."

Peter stood up. "I'm going to ask someone else—I usually have a thumping head cold."

"The reason I never see the first robin on the lawn is because my eye is on my hat which is usually sailing down the street ahead of me, with a half-block head start."

"Spring is a sly minx who just loves to fool us mortals. There's usually a thunder shower behind every one of her sunny smiles. Even the baseball games being played don't count."

"Hey! Don't open that window—don't you know it's blowing a gale outside? Hmm—what's that I smell? Aaaahhh! Boy, get a chestful of that air—now I know what the poets mean by the 'nectar of the gods'! Spring air—whoopee! I take it all back—every bit of it—what I said about Spring."

HORSE CUTS THIRD TEETH
CALGARY, Alta. (UP)—A 30-year-old horse owned by O. B. Webber is cutting a third set of teeth and still "going strong". Webber has driven the horse to church twice a week for the last few years and attributes the animal's longevity to "right living."

Peter was not inspecting the dress. His eyes were lingering on the large, dark eyes of the girl at the desk, her tilted nose, and the red mouth that flew upward after the manner of her eyelashes. There was something about her—wings, singing. He could not define it. When he spoke his voice was light enough. "Some day, when we have an hour off between editions, remind me to ask you to hunt up the marriage license bureau with me, honey."

Barbara laughed but her eyes clouded. Good old Peter! He was grand—about the grandest person in Martinsville. They had been close friends, good companions, since that day two years ago when she had come home from college to apply for a job on his paper.

She remembered the scene now. "What do you want to do?" Peter had asked.
"Write," she answered cheerfully, though her heart was doing a series of figure eights. "I'd like a typewriter, a desk, and a lot of work."

"I can give you all three. Miss Abbie, the society editor, is leaving us next month. She's retiring. Suppose you sit in on her beat, get the hang of it. Then, if you like it, we can talk business."

So now, for two years, she had informed the public through the columns of the Post when one person married another, two people had a baby, the churches held chicken dinners, and people's relatives came to visit.

Peter had asked Barbara, that day, why she was leaving college. "I'm necessary at home," her answer came. "Or maybe just unnecessary away from home. My uncle reared me with my cousin Julia, his own daughter. His life insurance will take care of Julia and my aunt but I'm on my own. And there isn't any place to go, in my penniless state, except home."

"Julia Kingsley?" Even now Barbara remembered the man's surprised voice. "So she's your cousin!"

"You know her?"
Ever since she was nine and Julia 10, Julia had knocked Adam's grandsons for so many colored loops. Her hair was yellow as spun sunshine, and if her eyes were as calculating as an adding machine, her voice was so soft it screened the direct glare.

"I've met her. Are you alike?"
"Not very much."

"Good! Come on and meet Miss Abbie."

It wasn't until later that Barbara learned about the young reporter on the staff whose heart had been knocked east and west by Julia's charms, and finally dropped into her romantic waste-paper basket. Peter, fond of the boy, had taken a dislike to Julia.

The wedding music came singing through the windows.

Peter stood up. "I'm going to lunch. Haven't eaten yet. Keep house, Babbs." She heard his step going down the stairs.

Then she got up and banged down the wide window.

"So that's what you think of weddings!" The voice that spoke was young and deep and amused. Barbara turned swiftly. The man who went with the voice was tall and bronzed and his hair was light and bright. His profile was decidedly worth a second glance. His eyes didn't release hers. He was a stranger.

"I'm tired of keeping step to Mendelssohn," Barbara answered, and her voice was a little breathless. "I even type to rhythm. But is there something I can do for you?"

He smiled again. "Is your editor around?"

"He's across the street at the Brown Shanty eating lunch. He never stays long." Inconsistently, since her desk held a sheaf of notes waiting to be typed, she wished that this man would loiter. "I'll catch him there, then. By the way, how do I contact a girl named Julia Kingsley? I just arrived and it seems I am supposed to find her."

"Oh, you're here for the wedding?" Julia was a bridesmaid. One usher had been unable to come for the pre-nuptial festivities. This must be the man. "Julia is beautiful. She'll like you, and you'll turn a somersault for her." Barbara knew her eyes were mocking and her voice a little bitter.

When the man had gone, she put another piece of paper in her typewriter with such violence that the whole alphabet trembled. Why had he come to the office, anyway? What did he want?

Peter returned and the time for the wedding drew near. Barbara jammed some copy paper in her bag, pulled the leghorn hat over her curls, and picked up her gloves.

Across the church a tall young man with mischievous eyes was escorting the bridegroom's friends to their places. He did not see Barbara until the wedding party was standing before the minister. Then recognition came swiftly and he smiled. All of a sudden the bridesmaids' frocks were a lovely pink, the minister was bequeathing Paradise to two people, and the music to which the bridal party presently marched away was a shining ribbon of sound.

Barbara went to the reception just long enough to wish the bride happiness. When she passed the tall usher with the rough, bright hair, he said: "You're staying for the wedding supper, of course? I'll see you later."

She smiled. There was no real reason for telling him that she was not even invited to the wedding supper. She would go back to the office and work.

ISLANDS

ISLANDS are looking up these days. Nations take more and more interest in them, no matter how distant or isolated, as aviation spreads and they need landing and roosting places for their flyers.

Uncle Sam, long careless of such matters because we had more real estate at home than we could use, is waking up now and scanning the map for unused bits of land in the Pacific that have harbors where planes or ships may find shelter. Particularly in Polynesia, the region of "many islands" in the southwestern Pacific, near Australia and New Zealand.

To many islands there, unoccupied or held by doubtful claimants, the United States may have a lawful claim by virtue of prior discovery in the old whaling days. It would be foolish to go around claiming everything in sight; but a chain of such islands, to serve as landing and fueling stations and refuges against storms, and perhaps also supply posts for naval vessels, would be very useful hereafter. They are needed especially to serve the new commercial air routes.

It is probably unnecessary to get into any squabble with any other nation about them. In case of any honest dispute with other claimants, especially the British countries, it should be possible to handle the matter on a friendly and businesslike basis, buying what we need if our title isn't clear.

PRIZE-WINNING BOOKS

THE American Booksellers Association has announced its 1937 prizes. The winners are A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel", Eve Curie's "Madame Curie", Carl Crow's "400 Million Customers", and Lawrence Watkins "On Borrowed Time". Mr. Crow's book was rated "most original" and Mr. Watkins' "most deserving book which failed to receive adequate recognition."

The booksellers' awards differ from others because they are frankly based on personal preferences. In announcing the awards, it was carefully explained that "the booksellers merely vote for their favorite books. Twenty years from now we can decide which are the masterpieces. This year we can only decide which books we enjoyed reading the most."

Twenty years from now it may be interesting to compare the Booksellers' choices with the Pulitzer prize winners for this or any other year. Which group will last in popular and critical favor? Or will

ABOUT CALIFORNIA AND ICKES

WASHINGTON — Californians in the Capital are beginning to hear a lot about Charles Dunwoody, the California Chamber of Commerce lobbyist who has stirred up the campaign against the proposed Department of Conservation and has set Secretaries Ickes and Wallace at each other's throats.

The other day a delegation from Los Angeles went to see Secretary of the Interior Ickes to get a third transmission line built from Boulder Dam to Los Angeles, in order to supply more power to the city. In the delegation were Northcutt Ely, attorney for the Los Angeles water district, with Clyde Errett and Francis Lindley of Los Angeles.

They explained what they wanted to Ickes, who has charge of Boulder Dam power, and after listening carefully, he replied:

"Gentlemen, I would suggest that you take this up with California Chamber of Commerce. It maintains a very active lobby in Washington, headed by one Charles Dunwoody who, I understand claims that he can get anything he wants in Washington."

"There are a lot of other States asking for more Boulder Dam power, so if I were you I would see the boys who are supposed to be getting things done here."

Worried by Dunwoody's activities, Phil Swing, ex-Congressman from San Diego and a father of Boulder Dam, went to see Dunwoody, told him he was jeopardizing the position of a State which had more questions before the Interior Department than before any other agency in Washington.

SELLING "THE RIVER"

There is an interesting anti-monopoly story behind the deal made with Paramount Pictures for distribution of "The River".

This picture, noble successor to "The Plow that Broke the Plains", is being distributed all over the country through regular commercial channels, just like a Hollywood product.

"The Plow" was handled more modestly. Tugwell was proud of the picture, for it put across his Resettlement propaganda better than a ream of speeches. But he found Hollywood cool. The big cinema boys resented government competition.

When "The River" was filmed, with even greater success, Tugwell's successors in the Farm Security Administration wanted to make sure it would go places. They arranged a meeting with officials of Paramount to discuss distribution. From Washington there came not only representatives of Farm Security, but one more gentleman, whose presence meant pressure.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Caused Sickness from Eating of Mussels

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE DAY IN July, 1927, a man of 35 years of age went into a restaurant in San Francisco and ate a dozen and a half mussels for supper.

About a half hour later he began to feel aching and tired all over; then he was sick at his stomach and began to have trouble with his breathing. He became unconscious. It is not possible to tell a poisoned mussel from a healthy one on inspection or from smell. Conducing to a large epidemic is a spell of fair weather and favorable low tides over the week-ends, when most of the mussels are collected and consumed. Until the investigations have proceeded to the place where we know exactly the cause of the poisoning and how to prevent it, my advice would be not to eat any mussels on the Pacific coast between the months of May and October. This may be a little tough on the mussel-fishing industry, but at least it will save your life.

respiration were paralyzed, and he died five hours after the supper of mussels.

The experience was repeated on a 12-year-old boy, who ate raw mussels and died three and a half hours later. A boy of two years drank a small glass of broth with three mussels and died in five and a half hours.

Every year since then there have been deaths and severe sickness following eating of raw mussels along the Pacific coast. Three cases and two deaths were reported in 1936. Laboratory experiments have been made which make it plain that the poison comes to the mussel contained in the ocean water. It is probably the food of the shellfish.

What Mussels Feed On
Mussels feed on plankton. The outbreaks of mussel poisoning occur only in the summer months between May and October. At this time there is an increase of a certain kind of plankton.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. F. T.: "I have been troubled for more than a year with a dryness in my mouth at night. I am often awakened from sleep at night and have unpleasant dreams due to this dryness. Can I do anything to relieve this condition?"

Answer: Most people after the age of 30 sleep with their mouths open because their jaws relax, and the dryness is due to the air moving in and out. It is a practically universal condition after that period of life. The only thing that I know of to do for it is to have a glass of water at the side of your bed and when you wake up take a drink and get your mouth re-moistened. It is not significant of any disease.

CHAPTER 1

THE MUSICIANS had gathered early to rehearse for the Rinehart-Jameson nuptials which were scheduled for four o'clock, according to the engraved invitations that the postman had delivered to 200 local doors. Now the cello and violin, sweet and tremulous, followed the well-worn path to happiness as Barbara Kingsley walked down Center street.

But Barbara, instead of throwing her bright head higher to hold the rhythm, suddenly put her tanned hands over ears and ducked into the back entrance of the Martinsville Post. She was weary of weddings. If it hadn't been for her job as society editor, she murmured to herself as she climbed the stairs to the editorial room, nothing could have coaxed her to Marie Rinehart's wedding.

"Not 100 invitations all embossed in gold braid on white satin," she magnified the bride's social gesture as she tossed her large leghorn hat on the exchange table where it would be in everyone's way, ran slim, restless fingers through her unruly chestnut curls, and slid a sheet of yellow copy paper under the rubber roll of her typewriter. "Weddings should take place at a city hall at noon, and there should be no flowers!"

"Why?" She didn't know that she had spoken out loud until Peter Baxter, the managing editor, interrupted her reverie. He strolled over to her desk and leaned against it. He was tall, gangling and kindly. One lock of hair persisted in falling over one eye, and his face was homely but rugged and distinguished, though no one ever could decide where the distinction lay.

"How can a bride know if she loves the man when the whole frameup is influencing her that way?" Barbara asked candidly. "Her mind should be made up earlier, my dear young lady! What is eating you? The church does make swell society copy, don't they?"

Barbara nodded slowly, studying Peter under the thick, dark lashes that screened her gray-green eyes. "Excellent, Peter! Grist for the mill—except I'm running out of adjectives to describe the bride's dresses. Peter, they all follow the same pattern but they all want to look different."

Peter laughed, and the smile made his face very young. "You're doing all right, Babbs." He surveyed the green lace frock that his society editor was wearing. "Good looking dress."

"It was cream-colored last year. I dyed it. But it will make the grade, don't you think? Especially at weddings. Nobody sees anyone but the bride and her bridesmaids."

ask someone else — I usually have a thumping head cold.

"The reason I never see the first robin on the lawn is because my eye is on my hat which is usually sailing down the street ahead of me, with a half-bob head start."

"Spring is a sly minx who just loves to fool us mortals. There's usually a thunder shower behind every one of her sunny smiles. Even the baseball games being played don't count."

"Hey! Don't open that window—don't you know it's blowing a gale outside? Hmmm—what's that I smell? Aaaaahhh! Boy, get a chestful of that air—now I know what the poets mean by the 'nectar of the gods'! Spring air—whoopee! I take it all back—every bit of it—what I said about Spring."

HORSE CUTS THIRD TEETH
CALGARY, Alta. (UP)—A 30-year-old horse owned by O. B. Webber is cutting a third set of teeth and still "going strong". Webber has driven the horse to church twice a week for the last few years and attributes the animal's longevity to "right living."

"You're doing all right, Babbs."

Peter was not inspecting the dress. His eyes were lingering on the large, dark eyes of the girl at the desk, her tilted nose, and the red mouth that flew upward after the manner of her eyelashes. There was something about her—winking, singing. He could not define it. When he spoke his voice was light enough. "Some day, when we have an hour off between editions, remind me to ask you to hunt up the marriage license bureau with me, honey."

Barbara laughed but her eyes clouded. Good old Peter! He was grand—about the grandest person in Martinsville. They had been close friends, good companions, since that day two years ago when she had come home from college to apply for a job on his paper.

She remembered the scene now. "What do you want to do?" Peter had asked. "Write," she answered cheerfully, though her heart was doing a series of figure eights. "I'd like a typewriter, a desk, and a lot of work."

"I can give you all three. Miss Abbie, the society editor, is leaving us next month. She's retiring. Suppose you sit in on her beat, get the hang of it. Then, if you like it, we can talk business."

So now, for two years, she had informed the public through the columns of the Post when one person married another, two people had a baby, the churches held chicken dinners, and people's relatives came to visit.

When the man had gone, she put another piece of paper in her typewriter with such violence that the whole alphabet trembled. Why had he come to the office, anyway? What did he want?

Peter returned and the time for the wedding drew near. Barbara jammed some copy paper in her bag, pulled the leghorn hat over her curls, and picked up her gloves.

Across the church a tall young man with mischievous eyes was escorting the bridegroom's friends to their places. He did not see Barbara until the wedding party was standing before the minister. Then recognition came swiftly and he smiled. All of a sudden the bridesmaids' frocks were a lovely pink, the minister was bequeathing Paradise to two people, and the music to which the bridal party presently marched away was a shining ribbon of sound.

Barbara went to the reception just long enough to wish the bride happiness. When she passed the tall usher with the rough, bright hair, he said: "You're staying for the wedding supper, of course? I'll see you later."

She smiled. There was no real reason for telling him that she was not even invited to the wedding supper. She would go back to the office and work.

lunch. Haven't eaten yet. Keep house, Babbs." She heard his step going down the stairs.

Then she got up and banged down the wide window.

"So that's what you think of weddings!" The voice that spoke was young and deep and amused. Barbara turned swiftly. The man who went with the voice was tall and bronzed and his hair was light and bright. His profile was decidedly worth a second glance. His eyes didn't release hers. He was a stranger.

"I'm tired of keeping step to Mendelssohn," Barbara answered, and her voice was a little breathless. "I even type to rhythm. But is there something I can do for you?"

He smiled again. "Is your editor around?"

"He's across the street at the Brown Shanty eating lunch. He never stays long." Inconsistently, since her desk held a sheathe of notes waiting to be typed, she wished that this man would loiter. "I'll catch him there, then. By the way, how do I contact a girl named Julia Kingsley? I just arrived and it seems I am supposed to find her."

"Oh, you're here for the wedding?" Julia was a bridesmaid. One usher had been unable to come for the pre-nuptial festivities. This must be the man. "Julia is beautiful. She'll like you, and you'll turn a somersault for her." Barbara knew her eyes were mocking and her voice a little bitter.

World At A Glance

JUST WHERE is Hitler heading?

How far will he go? Those are the questions every foreign office, including our own, is asking. Perhaps even the German foreign office asks the question.

For Hitler is a mysterious force. His closest allies sometimes are bewildered by his moves. Ask Mussolini.

Hitler is a mystic. He believes he has a mission—for the Germanic peoples. He cannot understand that anybody should doubt that. He is compounded of all the ingredients that make a man once in a century or two a dangerous leader.

Such men believe themselves divinely inspired—even when they do not admit of a divinity.

A Corsican came to France—Napoleon—and led France. An Austrian came to Germany—Hitler—and leads Germany.

And he is likely to lead Germany much farther yet along the road of conquest.

BROOKS NO DEFEATS

Foreign offices gravely stick pins into small countries on the map, along the route the Germanic peoples possibly will follow under a leader who brooks no defeats. Like Joan of Arc, he hears voices, guiding him. And, like Joan of Arc, he eventually will be caught up with by the plodding, uninspired but patiently shrewd British.

It is the British, not the Jews or the Bolsheviks or the Catholics against whom Der Fuehrer should have vented his rage. But to the British he is polite; to the British he holds out a hand, one hand while with the other he takes his Austrians.

AN INTERESTING MAN

Hitler cannot be described in a word of denunciation. He cannot be belittled. Here is a man whose life is worth a study now, as it will be worth a study in the years to come. For Hitler is making history faster than any other man in the world today.

There is a fascinating book concerning him and Mussolini—"I Know These Dictators"—by G. Ward Price, one of the editors of the London Daily Mail, often described as England's most powerful paper.

Price is sympathetic. He belongs to that English group of newspaper proprietors, editors and industrialists who have a leaning Naziward. Incidentally, this group represented politically by Prime Minister Chamberlain, is liable to find itself facing a general election and overwhelming defeat if it snuggles any closer to Nazism.

Price's book is worthwhile for the human picture it gives of Hitler. And, too, perhaps unconsciously it strikes at the base of the man's afflictions (which millions of Germans do not yet see as an affliction). This man has constituted himself a savior, not a tyrant. Nothing must stand in the way of the redemption of the crushed Fatherland. It must draw to its own breast its children scattered everywhere.

Like Spartans they must unite, drill and ward off the "enemies" that surround them.

They must make Europe safe for the Germanic peoples. And all who stand in the way are condemned to heaven — a folklore Nazi heaven where gods perform wondrous feats against tremendous odds.

Such are the Hitler-Nazi divinations.

What ordinary diplomatic intercourse can stop an inspired leader imbued with such a spirit? He does not even think in detail. He is ruled by deep emotions, by spiritual intuitions. He exalts the crudest deed into the mightiest battle for right. He wonders only that other nations should be so backward as not to adopt his own ideology. He believes this newest Germanic "ideal" will spread throughout the world.

He speaks his heart to his people. They understand. Why shouldn't the world? All those who oppose are against "justice". Why should they not be committed to concentration camps and suffer the fate of the damned? And that is a truly horrible fate for the victims—quite innocent people.

WHO WILL STOP HIM?

Europe now asks, Who will stop Hitler?

Well, nobody will, unless he tries to violate the borders of the Soviet Union or France or Great Britain.

Both France and Russia believe they have been betrayed by Great Britain. But each believes Great Britain could not afford to see them attacked. If France should be invaded, the British Isles might be next. If the Soviet Union's territories are violated, the British dominions would consider themselves next—by Japan. And the British dominions, at the moment, are in a pretty state of temper over the mother country.

Australia and New Zealand and Canada are looking with longing eyes toward the United States and with angry eyes at England.

100 Attend Recital At Mrs. Van Vliet's Studio

Two Pianos and Violin Provide Program

Despite unfavorable weather conditions more than 100 guests gathered at the studio of Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, Sunday afternoon, when Mrs. Van Vliet and Frank R. Meier, of Columbus, offered a two piano recital. They were assisted by Wilbert Maddux, violinist.

The guests for the afternoon included the many piano pupils of Mrs. Van Vliet and their friends. The recital was arranged by Mrs. Van Vliet at the request of her pupils who were interested in hearing her play with Mr. Meier, who has been her instructor for the last five years.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson received, and the Misses Eleanor Dreisbach, Eleanor McAbee and Wanda Seymour ushered. The program was comprised of selections of the old masters as well as modern music, and was comparable in choice to a modern radio program, with the special idea of appeal to the piano students.

The duos were played with precision of movement and attention to detail, which gave proof of the serious interest of the performers. From the opening group "The Harmonious Blacksmith", with its rich deep chords, the "Tango in D", by Albeniz, in broken time, and concluding with one of the most familiar of Beethoven's works, the "Turkish March", with its many repetitions of the air, brought out in beautiful shadings, the program of the afternoon continued to hold the interest and enthusiasm of the audience to its close.

Two groups of violin selections were interspersed in the three groups of duos. Wilbert Maddux, concert violinist, of Columbus, chose for his numbers, well known melodies by Godard, Dordla, Massenet and Grieg. For this recital, Mr. Maddux played on one of the violins of his own manufacture, his sureness of touch and easy mastery of his instrument bringing out the full rounded tones and mellowness of the violin to the delight of all present.

The concluding duo by Mrs. Van Vliet and Mr. Meier was a modern number, "Russian Rhapsody", by Hesselberg. It was an arrangement including many traditional folk songs and dance tunes of that country. The brilliance of the number together with the splendid performance of the players brought an interesting program to a fitting close.

American Legion Auxiliary

Edward Turner, former Ohio attorney general, will be guest speaker at the community service meeting of the American Legion auxiliary Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The covered dish dinner planned for this time has been postponed. The meeting is open to the public.

Dessert-Bridge

An early Spring party of attractive appointments was entertained Saturday when Miss Wanda McNeal of Williamsport invited a group of friends for a dessert bridge.

The guests gathered at the Wardell party home at 1 o'clock and were seated for the dessert course at small tables, in the large dining room. A clever arrangement of St. Patrick's Day decorations was used, numbered green shamrocks marking the tables, the place cards and tallies being pictures of tiny carts filled with shamrocks, and small green pencils were given the guests for keeping their scores. Miniature Irish collens were used for centerpiece.

COUNTY GIRL MEMBER OF CAPITAL CO-ED QUINTET

Miss Betty Peters, Commercial Point, was a member of the co-ed basketball team which represented Capital university at the sports playday held at Ohio Wesleyan University on March 10. Cap's girl cagers proved that they are of the same caliber as this year's varsity team and easily won all their contests on the Wesleyan court.

Other colleges participating in the meet included Denison, Otterbein, and the home school, Ohio Wesleyan. The co-ed playday idea has become popular among central Ohio colleges throughout the last several months, similar meets having been held recently at Denison and Otterbein.

Miss Peters, who plays forward on the Cap sextet, is a junior in the arts college. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Peters, residing at Commercial Point, O.

ple of the church eligible for the organization whether members or not are invited to the affair.

Van Fossen-Seymour

The marriage of Miss Helen Seymour of Mansfield, formerly of Circleville, to Mr. Alfred Van Fossen of Mansfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Van Fossen of Clinton street, has been announced.

The ceremony was performed in Mansfield, Feb. 22. The couple is residing at 301 W. Third street, that city. Mr. Van Fossen is employed by the A. & P. company.

100 Attend Recital At Mrs. Van Vliet's Studio

Two Pianos and Violin Provide Program

Despite unfavorable weather conditions more than 100 guests gathered at the studio of Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, Sunday afternoon, when Mrs. Van Vliet and Frank R. Meier, of Columbus, offered a two piano recital. They were assisted by Wilbert Maddux, violinist. The guests for the afternoon included the many piano pupils of Mrs. Van Vliet and their friends. The recital was arranged by Mrs. Van Vliet at the request of her pupils who were interested in hearing her play with Mr. Meier, who has been her instructor for the last five years.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson received, and the Misses Eleanor Dreisbach, Eleanor McAbee and Wanda Seymour ushered. The program was comprised of selections of the old masters as well as modern music, and was comparable in choice to a modern radio program, with the special idea of appeal to the piano students.

The duos were played with precision of movement and attention to detail, which gave proof of the serious interest of the performers. From the opening group "The Harmonious Blacksmith", with its rich deep chords, the "Tango in D", by Albeniz, in broken time and concluding with one of the most familiar of Beethoven's works, the "Turkish March", with its many repetitions of the air, brought out in beautiful shadings, the program of the afternoon continued to hold the interest and enthusiasm of the audience to its close.

Two groups of violin selections were interspersed in the three groups of duos. Wilbert Maddux, concert violinist, of Columbus, chose for his numbers, well known melodies by Godard, Dordla, Massenet and Grieg. For this recital, Mr. Maddux played on one of the violins of his own manufacture, his sureness of touch and easy mastery of his instrument bringing out the full rounded tones and mellowness of the violin to the delight of all present.

The concluding duo by Mrs. Van Vliet and Mr. Meier was a modern number, "Russian Rhapsody", by Hesselberg. It was an arrangement including many traditional folk songs and dance tunes of that country. The brilliance of the number together with the splendid performance of the players brought an interesting program to a fitting close.

The guests gathered at the Wardell party home at 1 o'clock and were seated for the dessert course at small tables, in the large dining room. A clever arrangement of St. Patrick's Day decorations was used, numbered green shamrocks marking the tables, the place cards and tallies being pictures of tiny carts filled with shamrocks, and small green pencils were given the guests for keeping their scores. Miniature Irish colleens were used for cen-

HAMILTON AND ARLINGTON MAY REGAIN TITLES

Mighty Toronto Team, Led By Stellar Kinhead, Bridgeport Victim

COLUMBUS, March 14—(UP)—The law of averages should help Canton McKinley high school to win the Ohio scholastic basketball title in the annual tournament opening here Thursday, but there are 15 other capable Class A teams bent on showing the Bulldogs that it takes more than mathematics to win the most important of the state's schoolboy athletic events.

Canton McKinley never has won the state championship, but its teams have been the most persistent contender of any of the schools which last week won their way to the state finals. Since 1923, when the state high school athletic association began supervising tournament play, McKinley has been twice runner-up in the seven times it has been a state finalist.

McKinley was runner-up in 1928 and 1931, and also reached the state finals in 1929, 1930, 1936, 1937 and 1938.

Hamilton, the defending champion; Akron East and Bowling Green each has been in the state tourney three times before. Newark, the 1936 champion; Findlay, the 1936 runner-up, and Bridgeport each have tried it twice previously.

Because it is defending champion, Hamilton will be favored by many, but its season record of 15 victories and three defeats does not merit any higher consideration than a half dozen of the other finalists.

Canton McKinley, led by its fine captain, Carl Fiore, has won 15 games and lost three. Newark is coming back for the third straight season, with a brilliant record of 20 wins and one loss, the loss being to Massillon.

New Philadelphia is in almost the same category as Newark, having won 18 games and lost two, the two losses having been administered by Massillon. Xenia Central shared the limelight in southwestern Ohio with Hamilton by winning 18 and losing two. Youngstown East won 17 and lost two.

Three From Akron

Three Akron teams, all beaten several times, proved themselves good tournament teams. Akron East earned an enviable position when it beat the tough Massillon team. Akron St. Vincent and Akron Buchtel also will represent the rubber city.

The northwest district sends four teams which do not have such good won and lost records but which reached their peak in the district eliminations. They are Findlay, Mansfield, Bowling Green and Toledo Woodward.

Cincinnati Roger Bacon won 15 and lost four.

Marietta and Bridgeport might be classed as "dark horses." Marietta won only seven games in its regular season and then bowled over four teams in the tourney in convincing fashion. Bridgeport lost eight games in the regular season and then climaxed a successful tournament bid by defeating the strong Toronto team 50 to 49.

Toronto's defeat deprived state tournament fans of the privilege of watching one of Ohio's greatest scholastic stars in years—Tom Kinkade, crack Toronto forward. He scored 30 points as his team lost to Bridgeport.

Arlington Returns

Upper Arlington, a Columbus suburban high school, is back to defend the Class A title it won last year. By any way of calculating, Upper Arlington is the favorite. It has 31 consecutive victories, 18 of which were recorded this season.

Such teams as Cadiz, Canal Fulton and Shawnee, each of which have lost only once this season, will be out to upset the defending champs.

The Class B finalists, and their counties, are: Upper Arlington (Franklin); Radnor (Delaware); Enon (Clark); West Milton (Miami); Wyoming (Hamilton); Canfield (Mahoning); Hartsville (Stark); Canal Fulton (Stark); North Baltimore (Wood); Bettsville (Seneca); Genoa (Ottawa); Willshire (Van Wert); New Boston (Scioto); Shawnee (Perry); Cadiz (Harrison); and Strasburg (Tuscarawas).

Freak Accident; 3 Bruised

CADIZ, O. (UP)—A heavy truck smashed into an automobile, climbed an eight-foot embankment and caved in 10 feet of foundation in a house. Neither the truck driver, the two occupants of the car, nor the three persons in the house received serious injuries.

Doubt Women's Marksman

FALL RIVER, Mass. (UP)—Because he believes firearms in the hands of women are dangerous, Police Chief Abel J. Violette has suspended revolver target shooting by members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union at the police pistol range.

The worst thing is monotony. People want to see the other side of the moon.

Eight Schools to Put Youths in Mit Matches

Eight schools will have contestants in the Pickaway county amateur boxing tournament scheduled Monday and Tuesday evenings in the Athletic Club gymnasium. The card is sponsored by the C. A. C. with Earl Hussey as matchmaker.

Entries have been made in nearly all divisions, youths being weighed in and classified Saturday afternoon. A physician's approval was put on each athlete who will compete.

MICHIGAN TEAM WINS ITS FIFTH INDOOR VICTORY

CHICAGO, March 14—(UP)—Michigan carried home its fifth straight Big Ten indoor track title today but the three record performances in the 28th running of the conference games were credited to Wisconsin and Ohio State.

Wisconsin's fleet distance Kings—Charles (Chuck) Fenske and Walter Mehl—cracked old records for the mile and two mile and Dave Albritton, Ohio State's olympic high jumper, bettered the old mark established by another buckeye jumper, Mel Walker, last winter.

Fenske's record mile might have been better. Knocked off the track as he attempted to pass Jimmy Smith of Indiana at the halfway mark, Fenske regained his stride and finished 30 yards ahead of his nearest rival, Tommy Beckard of Indiana, in 4:11.1. It was 1.4 seconds better than the old record set by Henry Brocksmith of Indiana in 1932.

Mehl's victory in the two-mile came the hard way. He was far back in the field on the last lap, spurred out of nowhere and nosed out Smith by half a foot as the Indiana Negro coasted into the tape. Mehl's time of 9:18.3, clipped a tenth of a second off Brocksmith's old mark.

Michigan piled up 32 1/2 points. The Wolverines captured points in all but the 60 yard dash and mile relay.

The 1938 champions: One mile—Charles (Chuck) Fenske, Wisconsin. Time 4:11.1 (new record).

60 yard dash—John Davenport, Chicago. Time 6.3 seconds.

440 yard dash—Bob Teufel, Iowa. Time 49.8.

70 yard high hurdles—Elmer Gedeon, Michigan. Time 8.6 seconds (ties American indoor record).

Two mile—Walter Mehl, Wisconsin. Time 9:18.3 (new record).

880 yard run—Fenske, Wisconsin. Time 1:55.4.

Mile relay—Ohio State (Sulzmann, Robinson, Howells, Squire) time 3:20.7.

Pole vault—M. Padway, Wisconsin. Height 13 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

Shot put—Bill Watson, Michigan

HAMILTON AND ARLINGTON MAY REGAIN TITLES

Mighty Toronto Team, Led By Stellar Kinkadee, Bridgeport Victim

COLUMBUS, March 14 — (UP) — The law of averages should help Canton McKinley high school to win the Ohio scholastic basketball title in the annual tournament opening here Thursday, but there are 15 other capable Class A teams bent on showing the Bulldogs that it takes more than mathematics to win the most important of the state's schoolboy athletic events.

Canton McKinley never has won the state championship, but its teams have been the most persistent contender of any of the schools which last week won their way to the state finals. Since 1923, when the state high school athletic association began supervising tournament play, McKinley has been twice runner-up in the seven times it has been a state finalist.

McKinley was runner-up in 1928 and 1931, and also reached the state finals in 1929, 1930, 1936, 1937 and 1938.

Marietta Similar
Marietta high has a tournament record almost paralleling Canton's. Marietta was runner-up in 1933, and also reached the finals in 1923, 1924, 1936, 1937 and 1938.

Hamilton, the defending champion; Akron East and Bowling Green each has been in the state tourney three times before. Newark, the 1936 champion; Findlay, the 1936 runner-up, and Bridgeport each have tried it twice previously.

Because it is defending champion, Hamilton will be favored by many, but its season record of 18 victories and three defeats does not merit any higher consideration than a half dozen of the other finalists.

Canton McKinley, led by its fine captain, Carl Fiore, has won 15 games and lost three. Newark is coming back for the third straight season, with a brilliant record of 20 wins and one loss, the loss being to Massillon.

New Philadelphia is in almost the same category as Newark, having won 18 games and lost two, the two losses having been administered by Massillon. Xenia Central shared the limelight in southwestern Ohio with Hamilton by winning 18 and losing two. Youngstown East won 17 and lost two.

Three From Akron
Three Akron teams, all beaten several times, proved themselves good tournament teams. Akron East earned an enviable position when it beat the tough Massillon team. Akron St. Vincent and Akron Buchtel also will represent the rubber city.

The northwest district sends four teams which do not have such good win and loss records but which reached their peak in the district eliminations. They are Findlay, Mansfield, Bowling Green and Toledo Woodward.

Cincinnati Roger Bacon won 15 and lost four.

Marietta and Bridgeport might be classed as "dark horses." Marietta won only seven games in its regular season and then bowled over four teams in the tourney in convincing fashion. Bridgeport lost eight games in the regular season and then climaxed a successful tournament bid by defeating the strong Toronto team 50 to 49.

Toronto's defeat deprived state tournament fans of the privilege of watching one of Ohio's greatest scholastic stars in years — Tom Kinkadee, crack Toronto forward. He scored 30 points as his team lost to Bridgeport.

Arlington Returns
Upper Arlington, a Columbus suburban high school, is back to defend the Class A title it won last year. By any way of calculating, Upper Arlington is the favorite. It has 31 consecutive victories, 18 of which were recorded this season.

Such teams as Cadiz, Canal Fulton and Shawnee, each of which have lost only once this season, will be out to upset the defending champs.

The Class B finalists, and their counties, are: Upper Arlington (Franklin); Radnor (Delaware); Enon (Clark); West Milton (Miami); Wyoming (Hamilton); Canfield (Mahoning); Hartsville (Starke); Canah Fulton (Starke); North Baltimore (Wood); Bettisville (Seneca); Genoa (Ottawa); Willshire (Van Wert); New Boston (Scioto); Shawnee (Perry); Cadiz (Harrison); and Strasburg (Tuscarawas).

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CLEAR THE DECKS

Most of the successful lead-throwing end plays depend upon the stripping of somebody's hand, either your own and dummy or that of the defender who is expected to make the lead that helps you. In case of such plays at no trump, it is usually necessary to deprive the opponent of any cards in a certain suit or suits. In a suit contract, sometimes it is just as well if you completely eliminate all cards of certain suits from your own two holdings. Then the poor defender either leads up to your honor or honors in a tenace position, or gives you a chance to choose the holding with which you will ruff, while you discard from the other.

North and South reached a contract of 5-Clubs on this deal. South's original call was 1-Club, which West overcalled with 1-Diamond.

mond, North put in a bid of 3-Clubs and South bid 5.

The diamond K was led and won with the A. A club was then led to the A and followed by a heart to dummy's A. A club put South in the lead to cash the heart K, on which a diamond was discarded, and the last heart ruffed. Now declarer tried the spade to the K, which West won with the A and cashed a second spade, setting the contract.

With West's overcall, it was very evident he held the spade A. The very simple play of putting West in with a diamond, instead of touching spades, would have forced West to lead spades and the contract would have been safe.

CREEKS BANK-FULL, FIELDS MUDDY AS RESULT OF HEAVY WEEK-END RAIN

COLD WEATHER PREDICTED FOR LATER IN DAY

More Than Inch Recorded By Dr. Clarke Prior To Monday's Downpour

Streams were swollen and fields were changed to seas of mud Monday as a result of the heaviest rain in several months during the week-end. Rain started to fall at noon Sunday and was continuing Monday. Farm experts declared that activities in the fields would be delayed several days even if the rain stops Monday. Dr. H. R. Clarke, Circleville's weather recorder, reported the official rainfall in the 24 hours preceding 8 a. m. Monday as 1.12 inches. More rain fell Monday after the official measurement was taken. The Scioto river was bank full. Rain, changing to snow, and lower temperatures were predicted for late Monday. Tuesday was expected to be warmer. The highest temperature recorded Sunday was 57 degrees and the lowest during the night 54.

EAST LIVERPOOL, March 14 (UP)—An inch of rainfall during the last 24 hours started a rise of two tenths of a foot an hour in the Ohio river here today. Lockmen at Dam No. 8 reported a stage of 13.6 feet at 9 a. m. but predicted a steady climb. No flood warning was issued.

however, he spent virtually all his time discussing policy. His text came from three sources: the Bible, which states that "A strong man armed keepeth his house in order;" President Roosevelt's message and speeches; and the policy statements of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

"The foreign policy (outlined by Hull) voices the sentiment of the rank and file of the American people," Vinson said. "It has been the policy that has guided this country during these troublous times in the Far East for the last six months, and it has been that policy that has maintained peace for us."

"In the hope to make political capital and to embarrass the President and the secretary of state, it has been openly and brazenly charged that the President of the United States and the secretary of state have some kind of secret understanding with the British government.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence to support such a charge and I brand the same as a deliberate distortion of the truth and a perversion of the facts."

"In view of Japan's refusal to put her cards on the table by making known her building program," said Vinson, "and in view of what has happened in Europe a few days ago, and in view of Great Britain's territorial possessions and investment of over a billion dollars in China, and in view of the fact that there existed for a great many years an offensive and defensive, Anglo-Japanese alliance, we may soon witness history repeating itself, all of which should drive home to us the absolute necessity of having a strong navy so this government can protect its people standing alone."

Vinson said the proposed naval increase is "barely adequate" to provide against successful attack on the continental United States and our insular possessions.

That every bid submitted by members of the association was within a few dollars of the cost estimates of the highway department.

That the state estimates "were greatly in excess of the fair and reasonable value of the labor, material and services to be performed and furnished."

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU. BY BOB BURNS

Durin' the recent storm out here, when I saw the water backin' up and risin' in my basement, I got panicky and called every plumbin' shop in town and told 'em to bring a pump, but I was told they couldn't get through. Finally in desperation I called good old Paramount. I said "They won't let me down."

Four hours later, I was down in the basement, pilin' furniture up high when my wife hollered down that the men were here from Paramount. I rushed up to welcome 'em and there were two cameramen.

They said "We heard you were getting flooded and we thought we'd take some publicity pictures." And there I was without a bit of dry ammunition in the house.

however, he spent virtually all his time discussing policy. His text came from three sources: the Bible, which states that "A strong man armed keepeth his house in order;" President Roosevelt's message and speeches; and the policy statements of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. "The foreign policy (outlined by Hull) voices the sentiment of the rank and file of the American people," Vinson said. "It has been the policy that has guided this country during these troublous times in the Far East for the last six months, and it has been that policy that has maintained peace for us.

"In the hope to make political capital and to embarrass the President and the secretary of state, it has been openly and brazenly charged that the President of the United States and the secretary of state have some kind of secret understanding with the British government.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence to support such a charge and I brand the same as a deliberate distortion of the truth and a perversion of the facts."

"In view of Japan's refusal to put her cards on the table by making known her building program," said Vinson, "and in view of what has happened in Europe a few days ago, and in view of Great Britain's territorial possessions and investment of over a billion dollars in China, and in view of the fact that there existed for a great many years an offensive and defensive, Anglo-Japanese alliance, we may soon witness history repeating itself, all of which should drive home to us the absolute necessity of having a strong navy so this government can protect its people standing alone."

Vinson said the proposed naval increase is "barely adequate" to provide against successful attack on the continental United States and our insular possessions.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU. BY BOB BURNS

Durin' the recent storm out here, when I saw the water backin' up and risin' in my basement, I got panicky and called every plumbin' shop in town and told 'em to bring a pump, but I was told they couldn't get through. Finally in desperation I called good old Paramount. I said "They won't let me down."

Four hours later, I was down in the basement, pilin' furniture up high when my wife hollered down that the men were here from Paramount. I rushed up to welcome 'em and there were two cameramen.

They said "We heard you were getting flooded and we thought we'd take some publicity pictures." And there I was without a bit of dry ammunition in the house.

Some argued that Germany, through the inclusion of Austria, had achieved victory greater than if they had won the war.

Many persons seemed to share the fielding of Field Marshal Hermann Goering, whom Hitler named his representative during his absence in Austria. Goering said in a speech yesterday: "Whoever attacks Germany or Germans will meet cannon ready to fire."

They expected next that Hitler would go after colonies Germany lost in the World War, and they were mindful that Goering in his speech said: "Germany does not want to and will not mix in the domestic affairs of any other nation, but the world must know that Germany feels sponsorship for all Germans beyond her frontiers."
